And looking forward to hearing from YOU! Over the past few months all of us have had a chance to take a break, enjoy time with family and friends, and work on projects or hobbies that we otherwise don't have time for. Now we are all back to work and looking forward to a GREAT spring!!

This is one of the most exciting times of the year at the Nursery! The greenhouses are filled with fresh flats, the smell of the new dirt being warmed by the sun, and just a hint of chill in the air. Native plants are different than many other "garden" variety plants. Sowing the seed is not the beginning of their journey, but in fact about 1/2 way through. The stratification process that we use to encourage seed to germinate is a lengthy, (somewhat) scientific process, learned mostly by trial and error or trial and success over the years. We specialize in over 100 different species and each year any one of those may need 2 or 3 or 4 different treatments on their way to germination. It can be a tedious process, but so rewarding in the end. It is always a race to see who can find the little sprouts first and report back that they are "showing"! What a good feeling that is. It means that months and months of planning and preparing have come together in success, and we will have a new crop to share with YOU!

TOP: Freshly sown Blue Elderberry (Sambucus cerulea) seed in 10 cubic inch cells.
RIGHT: Douglas Hawthorne (Crataegus douglasii) sprouts.

CHECK OUT OUR NEW WEBSITE

We are proud to announce the launch of our new website! plantsofthewild.com is your one-stop shop for Pacific Northwest natives and hard-to-find plants! We are continually making changes and updates so be sure to check back frequently. There is a sign-up tab to receive our NEW quarterly newsletter, and Wholesale tab so you can check out our current availability any time. There is also link to our facebook page! Yes, even Plants of the Wild has found a place on facebook! And we want to hear from you.

Looking for a specific plant? Have something you want us to try? Do you need a grass mix for a tough spot? How about a gardening "how-to" question for our expert Kathy ... We aim to please! So please feel free to make suggestions, and we'll see what we can do to make this YOUR site!
